How He Showed Me His Love Is Mighty

When I just arrived in Toronto, everything was so new for me. I did not know anyone in class, or worse, knew how to get from Con Hall from my residence. No worries, I know now. Everything was so exciting, but at the same time, a bit terrifying. When I was feeling lost with no sense of belonging in this unfamiliar city, a friend brought me to CCF with her. I was immediately greeted by other brothers and sisters. At first, it was a bit embarrassing, as I did not know how to react. But as I start to go to CCF more, I felt more and more welcomed. It was like coming home. When I was feeling lost, God has placed loving brothers and sisters in my life when I needed them the most.

Let God and His Greatness Be Known

So in this upcoming year, I want to become one of the people that greet brothers and sisters at the front door. Whether they already know God, or they do not, I want CCF to become their home away from home. And whether they have already been at CCF before or whether they are newcomers, I will be there to welcome them back home. Because you never know who needs it the most.
